BUZZING OVER BEE LINE NOW SLOGAN OF ASSOCIATION TO PROMOTE HIGHWAY

Steps Taken to Bring Road to the Attention of the Nation

BOOSTERS RAISE FUNDS TO ADVERTISE ROUTE

Recommended by Van Valkenburgh to Thousands of Tourists Annually

This is the slogan that the Bee Line Highway Boosters Association, recently organized to maintain and advertise the Bee Line Highway as the fastest route between the North and Florida, this season, have adopted. And the Association is taking steps to bring the slogan to the attention of the motorists who make the annual Winter pilgrimage to Florida.

A highway 854 miles long with practically 500 miles of improved hard-surface road and the balance sand and dirt roads in good to fair condition, well posted most of the way with the distinctive "B-H" in black on a yellow background, maintained the year round by enthusastic boosters, the fastest motor travel route between the North and Florida—this is what the Bee Line offers the tourist.

The Boosters are raising money to maintain and advertise their highway. A handsome 16-page map and log book is now on the press and will soon be ready for free distribution at all touring information bureaus and in towns along the highway. And news articles are being furnished newspapers and motor publications on the North and East.

P. K. Van Valkenburgh, manager of the Florida State Auto Association, is recommending the Bee Line Highway to the thousands of tourists who annually apply to him for information. The objectionable spots which Mr. Van Valkenburgh remarked upon on his recent pathfinding trip over the highway have been removed and he has assured the Boosters of his cooperation in advertising the highway this season.

DIAZ ADHERENTS UNDER SUSPICION

(International News Service)

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 20. — Recent disclosure of a plot directed against the Obregon government apparently directed by General Felix Diaz from his headquarters in New Orleans have placed old supporters of the Diaz regime under suspicion. Many of these adherents of Diaz are back in Mexico but scattered in such a way that until now it did not seem that any sort of organization could be maintained.

Some of these men were with Diaz all through his varying fortunes following the fall of his uncle President Diaz in the first Madero revolution.

Shoals' Chances Are Very Good

Congressman of the Belief That Way Will be Found

EDWARD B. ALMON

Chances are exceedingly good that the government will continue its development of Muscle Shoals, either by acceptance of the Ford offer or otherwise, in the opinion of Edward B. Almon, eighth district representative in the house, who is here on a visit to friends and relatives.

"As a matter of fact," said he, "in speaking the other day with President Harding he informed me his administration had no intention of permitting the Muscle Shoals program to fall through. While I was calling his attention to the fact that if the government permits the nitrate plants to stand by idle they will deteriorate to such an extent that the government might find considerable difficulty in operating them after a course of some 25 to 50 years, President Harding interupted me to say that the government had no intention of permitting such a situation.

"The same clique which opposed the appropriation of additional funds by the government for completion of the Wilson Dam, on the ground that it was a junk-heap, now are fighting the Ford offer on the ground that he doesn't offer enough for the government property. Its rather an about-face position for them and one which leaves it up to them to put-up or shut-up.

"I believe the negotiations for the Shoals are progressing very satisfactorarily. As a matter of fact it may be that the refusal of congress to appropriate the funds needed for completion of the dam may prove a blessing in disguise.

"While congress was debating the matter, Secretary Weeks said that he would not advise an appropriation until a substantial business concern has assured him that there would be a market for the power and that the plan was financially sound. As a result of his policy, the bid of Mr. Ford was made. Both Mr. Weeks and Mr. Hoover are earnestly interested in the fate of the Shoals. Its a tremenduous undertaking and necessarily requires much thought. Never before has there been undertaken at any single spot the development of 800,000 horse power from water power sites.

"Its the biggest thing of its kind in the world and I believe the outcome will be all that our section could desire."

SHRINE MINSTRELS APPEAR SEPT. 28 AT PRINCESS THEATER

Albany and Decatur people are promised an evening of rare pleasure when the crack minstrel troupe representing the Anniston Shriners appear here on the evening of Sept. 28, for the one performance, a variety of the big time presentation.

One of the outstanding features of the performance will be the fiddling of F. S. Coupland, one-armed champion of Georgia and Alabama, who places his bow under the stub of his left arm and carries his fiddle back and forth with a skill which has made him a celebrity as a violinist throughout the south.

The Anniston Shrine outfit is backed and supported by a large number of the leading fez wearers of the Model City, and few amatuer organizations have been more successful than it has since its organization.

In the cast there are a number of specialists in their lines and the people of the these cities are promised an evening filled with high class entertainment when the attractive costumed minstrel men come here during the latter part of the month.

FURTHER FIGURES ON FORD'S OFFER NOW REQUESTED

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. — Late yesterday Secretary of War Weeks went into conference with engineers representing Henry Ford on the question of Ford's offer for the Muscle Shoals nitrate plant.

Present at the conference were Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Brigadier General H. Taylor, of the army, representing the chief of army engineers and W. D. Mayo and J. W. WWorthington, representing Henry Ford.

The conference lasted about an hour and a half and at its conclusion Secretary Weeks said certain figures were asked for which the Ford engineers are going to prepare and present, either in person or by letter. Upon the presentation of these figures, Mr. Ford will come to Washington to confer with Secretary Weeks and Hoover regarding details of the proposed sale.

Negotiations for the sale of the plant to Ford have been interrupted because of a difference between the Ford engineers and army engineers in estimating the cost of the plant, it was learned today.

Secretary of War Weeks stated that the Ford engineers have estimated the cost of the plant at a figure between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 lower than the cost estimated by army engineers. The Ford engineers now are revising their estimates and when this is done Henry Ford will confer with Secretary Weeks.

The Secretary said that it would be impossible to make recommendation to congress for the sale of the plant until a definite basis of estimating the cost of the plant had been agreed upon.

Highway Commission Framing Bomb Proof Act to Provide Road Funds

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 20. — Members of the state highway commission met here Monday to complete the task of drafting a highway commission bill and a highway bond issue bill which cannot be shattered by legal bombs. They will remain in session two days and when the bills have been placed in proper shape will be submitted to attorneys for criticism. The commission does not propose to offer at the extra session of the legislature any measures which have not been approved by attorneys.

Although the commission has not announced what will be in the measures the general understanding is that the legislature, in the event of an extra session, will be asked to submit another twenty-five million dollar bond issue and so to amend the highway commission act as to correct any unsatisfactory features of the present law. Provision will be made which will guarantee all counties an equitable portion of the bond issue funds and another provision will prohibit the issuance of any state highway bonds for any purpose other than to match the federal appropriation. In other words, the state highway bonds will be issued only in such quantities as will match the annual appropriations made by the national congress.

In meeting here at this time, members of the commission said they had no information as to when the legislature will meet but they take it for granted that Governor Kilby will call a session in time to protect Alabama's part of the federal appropriation now held in the national treasury.

Senator John Craft of Mobile, who has been a member of the highway commission since it was created in 1911, will appear before associations of bankers and clearing houses throughout the state in the interest of the proposed highway bond issue. He has proposed that banks in this state take as many of the state highway bonds as possible, thus creating a peronal interest in highway construction among the people. The Mobile Clearing House has already adopted a resolution endorsing the plan and assuring the highway commission that it will take its quota of the state bonds.

Stole Clothing, Except Trousers

(International News Service)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20.—Police today began search for four negroes who Sunday night held up and robbed George H. Johnson, time keeper of the Gruenwald hotel on a road on the lake shore and stole all of his clothing except his trousers. The negroes then rushed him into the swamps where he was lost all of Monday. He emerged from the thicket at 10 o'clock today suffering severely from mosquito bites and reported to the police.

GOD'S CARE THEME OF EVANGELIST IN EARNEST SERMON TO LARGE CROWD

Prayer Meeting Committees of the Campaign Special Guests

DIVINE MERCY ONLY CHANCE FOR SINNERS

"Blood Stained Path of Martyrs" Not to be Shunned

Sermon Subjects of Bob Jones.
This afternoon at 4: "False Religions."
Tonight at 7:30: "The Prodigal Son."
Wednesday afternoon: "The Atonement".
Wednesday night: "Excuse".

"God's Care" was the theme of Bob Jones last night when he preached to the prayer meeting committees of the campaign as special guests. The usual crowded condition obtained, as has been the case at all the night services. The response at the alter service was about up to the average in numbers. The Evangelist said that it had not been his intention to threaten unbelievers with the terrors of the damned last night, but rather to stress the overpowering influence of God's love.

He declared that "mercy" alone was the only thing for which unbelievers could ask, that the precious promises of God, had no application to others.

The first exercise was a request from Loren Jones for the members of all the prayer committees to stand to their feet, and as each division they would repeat various scripture texts. John 3:16 "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him, should not perish, but have everlasting life" was the favorite quotation, three different divisions giving it.

A vocal duet was then sung by Rev. and Mrs. G. C. Walker, members of the music committee. Following songs led by the choir, Loren Jones sang "Can a boy, forget his mother's prayer?"

The Evangelist opened his discourse by impressing that religion was a personal matter. Taking up the 16th Psalm' he commented on every one of the entire eleven verses. The instinct of all parents to raise their voices to God in prayer in case of a sick child, was referred to, and all were told that they had no right to ask the life of a child to be saved, if they expected to rear him in sin. All were advised that unless God were put forth, there could be no happiness. He said that all were privileged and required to walk the same path as had Abraham, the father of the faithful, and all the other faithful ones. It was advised that "the blood stained path of the martyrs" was not the be shunned.

New Fangled Religion Denounced

The speaker said that "the old way of religion" was the only way, and in this connection new fangled conceptions of religious life were strongly denounced. He said that the roads of all such religions came to an this side the grave. The ways of those who put fame first were said to be sure to perish, just as surely as would the way of the gambler, the seeker of a good time and the followers of the dance. Such was not the way with the Christian, he said. "Tie your heart to God, and live forever, advised the speaker. "In God's presence is the fullness of joy; He shows us the way of life and goes with us; if we choose hell, we walk alone". The congregation was asked what did people care for the roughness of the road, or the difficulties of travel, if on the way to some on whom we loved. It was declared that with Christ at the end. the way of the Cross was not hard.

Mrs. E. C. Payne reports that $316. was taken up for the Hospital Sunday night in the special collection.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 20. — Special—The body of Joseph L. Hall, president of the Alabama Bank and Trust Company since it was organized in 1907, was shipped to Selma for interment Monday. Funeral services were conducted at St. John's Episcopal church at 6:30 Monday morning.

GREATEST FREIGHT RATE FIGHT IN THE STATE'S HISTORY IS LOOMING AT CAPITAL

President Patterson Hears That Railroads Will Carry Case to Washington

NOT AT LIBERTY REVEAL INFORMATION'S SOURCE

Clash Between State and National Commissions Expected by Officials

(Montgomery Bureau Albany-Decatur Daily.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 20. — The greatest freight rate fight in the history of Alabama will start during the next few days. A. G. Patterson, president of the public service commission, who returned from Washington Sunday, officially stated Monday that he received authoritative information in Washington that the railroads operating in Alabama were preparing a petition asking the interstate commerce commission to review every freight rate now used on intrastate movements in Alabama.

President Patterson said he was not at liberty to give the name of the person from whom he received the information but that he was told the petition was in process of preparation and would be filed before many days have passed. The president of the Alabama commission made arrangements while in Washington to obtain a copy of the petition as soon as it is prepared and filed so the public service commission of Alabama may prepare for the defense of Alabama rates.

According to details obtained by Mr. Patterson, the railroads, who will be led by attorneys for the Southern railroad, will allege that Alabama's intrastate rates are not on a parity with the intrastate rates of other states and that the low Alabama intrastate rates are an unnecessary discrimination against interstate commerce.

Mr. Patterson declined to indicate what course will be pursued by the Alabama commission when the petition is submitted and plans will not be formulated until the petition has been filed, members of the Alabama commission have conferred and attorneys representing the state have gone over the petition.

However, it is believed the Alabama commission in answer to the petition will demand that the interstate commerce commission review all interstate rates in the southeastern states, contending that intrastate rates are so interwoven justice can be done only by a general review of the rate situation throughout the southeastern state.

This rate fight has been expected for a week. Last week the commission cited all railroads to appear October 3 and show whether or not proper rates are now being maintained on shipments of cotton, other cotton products, coal, coke and other commodities consigned to the general public. At the same time the story was started over the state that a general citation would soon be issued requiring the railroads to justify all intrastate freight rates which they have maintained since the director-general of railroads granted increases during the time the railroads were under government control.

DISABLED NEGRO SOLDIERS TO GET HOSPITAL OF OWN

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. — A new government hospital for the exclusive treatment of disabled negro soldiers will be located at Tuskegee, Ala., it was announced at the treasury department today.

The new hospital will cost about $1,000,000 and will have 500 beds. A proposal by Robert Moton, of Tuskegee institute, that the hospital be located on the grounds of that institution is under consideration.

COUNCIL MEETS

The Albany city council will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in regular session.

Auction Forces Clearer View of Unemployment

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. — Balked by the police in his efforts to repeat in New York the slave auctions he staged in Boston "Mr. Zero," Urbain J. Ledoux changed his tactics from defiant aggression to peaceful penetration today. However his dramatic auctioning attempts, climaxed last night by riots in and around Bryant's park, where police reserves with night sticks, brought up a mob of thousands after wild battling, has brought the unemployment situation in this metropolis to a head and it appeared early today that an organized movement of unemployed was determined to finish what Ledoux had started.

While he started the day by dispensing generous "feeds" in an uptown doughnut parlor a committee from the unemployed was outlining plans force relief from the city. Their first step will be a demand on Mayor Hylan to throw open the armories to all service men where they might hold meetings and take up collections.

UNDERWOOD GIVES CONSENT TO SERVE AS ARMS DELEGATE

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. — Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, Democratic leader of the senate, called on President Harding today and formally accepted the appointment to the American delegation to the forthcoming conference on limitation of armaments.

Senator Underwood informed the President he would be very happy to serve on the American delegation and stated that he is "a sincere believer in disarmament."

The Senator said he did not discuss the program of the conference with the President.

Opposition to congress making any move to force open sessions of the approaching conference on the limitations of armaments and the far eastern question was expressed today by Senator Underwood, the Democratic minority leader of the senate following a conference he had with President Harding at the white house.

As one of the American representatives at the conference Senator Underwood said he "would be very glad personally to see the sessions open but there were other nations to be considered in the matter."

Underwood expressed the opinion that it is not within the province of congress to express a resolution or to take any other action to request or suggest to the President that he use his influence to have the sessions open. Underwood's declaration was regarded as usually important in view of the fact that Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, is planning to press again upon the senate his resolution for open sessions which failed of adoption before congress.

LABOR'S ROLE WILL BE LIMITED IN THE JOB HUNTING MEET HOOVER DISCLOSES

Organizations Will Have Little Voice in Shaping of the Conference

SELECTIONS ARE MADE FROM ANY CLASSES

Labor, However, Will Have Much Weight in the General Parley

(International News Service)

WWASHINGTON, Sept. 20. — Labor will have no part in the preparation of the agenda for the conference on unemployment which will assemble here next Monday.

Secretary Hoover's announcement of the list of delegates and others who are serving in an advisory capacity disclosed that while there are 5 organized labor men among the 38 delefates who have accepted invitations, there is no labor representation on the advisory economic council which will shape the course of the conference. The council is to furnish the keynote for the conference.

Its deliberations will be shaped very largely along the lines indicated by the data and charts compiled by this group of experts who are making a study of various fields of industry.

Despite labor's absence from the advisory council its representation in the general conference is strong. Organized labor's five members will be able to exert a more potent influence than any other single group or industry.

Secretary Hoover in his discussion of the personnel of the conference said that the delegates had not been chosen because they were a particular class. He said elections were on the basis that the delegates chosen would be helpful in reaching a solution of the unemployment problem.

Secretary Hoover said that it was his desire to limit the size of the conference and thereby make it an efficient working group.

Trigger Trial Jury Unable to Agree

(International News Service)

WILLIAMSON, West Va., Sept. 20. —Indications point to a hung jury in the second trigger trial growing out of the Mattewan hostilities. This morning the jury stood 6 to 6 and announced that there was no prospect of a change of attitude. Judge Bailey ordered the jury locked up for further deliberation.

To Submit Treaties to the Senators

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—President Harding will submit the treaties of peace with Germany, Austria and Hungary to the senate for ratification it was announced officially at the white house this afternoon. No message will accompany the three treaties.

Bee Line Route Proves Best Way to Florida Through Alabama

Duff Green, vice president and James P. Dobbins, secretary of the Birmingham Automobile club made an inspection of the route to Florida via Gadsden, returning over the Bee Line via Cullman. On their return to Birmingham Mr. Dobbins issued the following statement:

"The Automobile club had had so many conflicting reports via the Bee-Line and also via Gadsden, and being desirous of giving the tourists passing our way the benefit of the very best and up-to-date information, Mr. Green was our efficient inspector over both of these routes.

"We left Birmingham last Thursday afternoon, returning three days later. The route via Gadsden is fairly good to Gadsden, but between Gadsden and Guntersville, we found the road to be in a terrible condition.

"Part of this road is very sandy and absolutely without foundation. The balance is rocky and full of holes. It would be very unfair to our Northern friends going through our state to send them over this route to Florida.

"The work of rebuilding the bridges between Cullman and Blount Springs is going ahead rapidly and this road is decidedly the best route. This is true notwithstanding the fact that three short detours covering a total of four miles are necessary at this time.

"Mr. Green and I were delighted with the road returning via Cullman and it is our purpose to notify all Automobile clubs in the north and middle west of the exact conditions of these roads so that such unfavorable impressions as have prevailed in the minds of members of these various clubs will be removed.

"It is the earnest desire of our local club to furnish the most complete and accurate information on roads at all times and we intend to see to it so far as we are able that false statements regarding road conditions shall not be made and, if made, they will be challenged and corrected."

WOMEN IN THE COMING NATIONAL CONVENTIONS AND ELECTIONS

The women were voters in the last presidential election, but in the coming national elections she will help decide the policies and the "paramount" issues.

As the 19th amendment came into effect late in the year, before the women had a chance to organize, their influence outside of their votes, was not considerable. But the men will consider their wishes in 1922 and 1924.

As the women came into the last election for president and showed their interest by casting almost their full voting strength, they may be expected to match their power in council against the men when the party platforms are made for the next four years.

The platforms of 1920 bear the impress of woman's influence, but still they remain essentially man-made affairs. We will still hear from the men. They will tell what the issue is to be. They will do a great deal of the pointing with pride and viewing with alarm, just as they have always done, but they will from now on, consult their wives at home, and the women leaders everywhere, before they come forth to save the country. It was indeed a new situation when the women came in as voters in 1920, but when they seek to surround the party council tables in the next few years, we will be facing an unprecedented situation.

WIND, MORE WIND THEN THE WHIRL-WIND

A hopeful sign for Germany is that the leaders of the Republic, are making hay while the sun shines in the matter of the foul murder of Erzberger. The police of President Ebert have been diligent in their search for the murderers, and they are reported to have proved beyond a doubt just who the guilty parties are. Their names mean nothing to Americans, but the fact that they are Royalists, in other words are supporters of the same Imperial Government that we helped destroy for a time, at least, means a great deal to a democracy like ours. The proper handling of the case the plain German people now have against their former slave-drivers, will mean much for the firm establishment of popular government in the Fatherland.

An evidence of how confident the Royalists still are in Germany, despite the many reverses and disgraces that have come to them, is the recent speech of Dr. Helfferich to the German National party, and except from which is as follows:

> Let our opponents beware of the danger of a future war! The president is still in office, though he isn't legally president. We see in Weimar only an episode which separates us from our ultimate goal, the restoration of the monarchy. We stand squarely on the constitution, which can be changed at any time. We shall make use of our privileges at the right time. We demand the revision of the treaty of Versailles and reject all fulfillment of it. In domestic politics we must be in the bitterest possible opposition and not shrink even from the overthrow of the ministry.

This expression will be recalled, as typical of the military class in Germany, before its army was beaten. It is reported that the sentiments of Dr. Helfferch were cheered to the echo. Doubtless the loudest cheers followed his statement that the Versailles treaty must be repudiated.

Another evidence of the power of the monarchist party is seen in a dispatch from Berlin stating that the ex-Kaiser's estate of $25,000,000 is exempt from taxation "without the authorities seeing fit to interfere." Another cable brings the news that the former Kaiser is no longer so lonely at his place at Doorn, as many members of the Hohenzollern family are joining him. Some writers construe these visits as due to the Republicans of Germany making it very uncomfortable for Royalists, while others see in them the possibility of scheme for the return of a monarchial form of government. If the German people continue to develop a strong sentiment for an absolute monarch, they may as well be ready to reap the whirlwind.

UNCLE REMUS

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, on Wednesday visited the grave of Joel Chandler Harris—Uncle Remus—to place a wreath on it in tribute to the man who made "Brer Rabbit" famous.

"Uncle Remus," said Mr. Gompers, "you live and still speak to millions who listen to your wondrous golden stories. I always loved and respected your poetry, philosophy, your stories and your personality. As long as children are with us and printing lives, you will be dear to the hearts of mankind."

There are thousands of others who, like Mr. Gompers, feels that Uncle Remus still lives. No writer of American fiction has worked himself into the hearts of the reading public as did this southerner who wrote primarily for children, but whose works are just as enjoyable to the older members of the family.

It would be a hard matter to find a person who does not know the tale of "Brer Rabbit and De Tar Baby" or "The Briar Patch," or "Miss Meadows and the Gals." Uncle Remus is as much a part of the early education of Americans as the A B Cs or the three Rs.

Dixie has every reason to be proud of this son of hers, who sleeps beneath the red hills of north Georgia. His writings, originally published in a newspaper, have taken their place among the real classics of all times and, as Mr. Gompers said, 'as long as we have children and printing lives Uncle Remus will be dear to the hearts of mankind.—Florida Metropolis.

HOBO INVASION AGAIN THREATENING THE SOUTH

That old-time pest, the hobo is coming this way again, if a threat issued by the "Hoboes' Union" in Chicago to a Southern city is to be relied upon. The tramp always is a harbinger of evil. In his wake come petty thefts, vermine and disease. He often does more than merely steal. Murders time and again have been traced to tramps, and worse than murder sometimes is charged to them. Women never can feel safe if professional tramps are around.

The threatened revival of the tramp nuisance is being discussed seriously in Southern newspapers. In Friday's Montgomery Advertiser the menace was referred to editorially and warning given to prepare for the invasion.

"The boys with the greasy rags and the dirty whiskers are preparing to move away from the snow storms of the north to make their beds in the gentler winter sun of the South," said the Advertiser.

"The South had no professional tramps to deal with during high tide of war and after-war prosperity. We had occasion to dispute with editorial writers who at that time prophesied that the day of the professional vagabond was gone. We had to tell them to wait and see, for the hoboes had not yet made their farewell tour. We were right (may we say as usual?) The ex-tramps are now preparing to hit the grit again.

"New Orleans authorities are disposed to regard as a hoax a letter from the Chicago "Hoboes' union' 'informing them that 12,000 members of the order would be sent to the Crescent City to sojourn during the winter months."

Nevertheless, "forewarned is forewarned," says the Houston Post, quoting even a greater authority upon truth. "This letter, hoax though it may be, contains a serious warning, not only to New Orleans, but to other Southern cities, which have suffered from the invasion of floaters in previous winters. Experience shows that with their coming crime increases, sometimes becoming rampant and waves of crime started by these idlers are hard to combat."

And the Post warns Houston and other Southern cities to be on their guard against the dingy invaders of the vagrancy laws when they come to visit us.

"Owing to the degree of unemployment among our own people," says the Houston paper, "it will require unusual discretion and discrimination in enforcing the vag. law. But it is clearly the duty of the police department in these cities to make it known in advance that the reception they will accord the criminal idlers from the North will be so much warmer than the climate of this section that they will not profit by coming this way."—Anniston Star.

We had one day of normalcy. Circus day with red lemon-ade, that looked like the real article and according to reports tasted like it.

What was the German Imperial government's loss in the late war, was humanity's gain, but the price was mighty high.

The country people say that the excess population is in the cities, while the city folks think they are the excess population.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

GOOD MANNERS.

A WISE Italian says that you can tell how civilized people are by the way that they behave in the street. He adds that if a man is considerate of his neighbor it shows that he has a proper respect for himself.

If a French peasant brushes against a stranger in the street or on the road, he touches his hat in apology. This sensitiveness to the rights of others is not found everywhere else in the world.

In fact, the tendency to hustle and bustle, to push others out of the way, has been growing of late nearly everywhere.

* * *

Gilbert Franheu, the novelist, is so irritated by what he calls the bad manners of the day that he regrets the good old days when everybody carried some sort of weapon and was ready to use it, if offended.

Undoubtedly a man with a sword who was not inclined to fight would be careful about knocking against another who was similarly armed.

The Chinese have a proverb that "The fear of death is the beginning of discipline."

If this is true, there must be something in the theory that when people gave up wearing rapiers and pistols, they become undisciplined and careless.

In the same way, though the use of arms tended to cheapen human life and to encourage bragging and bullying, dueling and brawling, it also had an effect on manners.

* * *

In the wild Western "movies" politeness and "guns" go together and, as a row is settled offhand, without waiting for the sheriff with his star, everybody is very careful not to "start anything."

If a man may be insolent, selfish or unchivalrous without running any personal risk, there is a chance that he may go through life like a bull in a china shop.

But when everybody attended to his own quarrels, it was overdone, and false standards of "honor" were set up as in the case of dueling customs of certain European armies.

It is probably better to rely on the policeman and the law when we suffer an injury.

* * *

On the other hand, it is pointed out by Mr. Franheu and the like that the law is a cannon that it takes many months to load.

Besides, the law does not bother about trifles, such as somebody's feelings. Actual injury must be shown.

Good manners may be a trifle. But they have a lot to do with happiness. And happiness is no trifle.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE JOYS WE SHARE.

THIS makes the songs of night so sweet:
They are not here before your feet
But over yonder; over hills
You hear the evening whip-poor-wills
Their notes melodious, their trills,
Repeat.

The unseen singers sweeter far
Than caged companions always are:
They do not sing for you, for me,
They sing for all humanity—
They are a part of grass, of tree,
Of star.

And so in life, the pleasures there
Are greatest common everywhere.
We ask so much for our own ease,
We seek so much so much to please,
Yet find our greatest joys in these
We share.

We must tear down the selfish wall;
Our song must be a comrade call.
Alone no happiness is had—
Each day will be increasing glad
If something to the joy we add
Of all.

Aircraft Garage.

The old joke of asking aviators: "Where is your garage?" has become passe with the establishment near London, England, of a bona fide aircraft garage intended for the use of aerial tourists and private plane owners. The company's announcement says: "A staff of highly skilled mechanics under fully qualified ground engineers. Petrol and oil supplies. Overhauls, modifications and repairs promptly executed."

MAYBE IT DEPENDS ON THE POWER

If you want to be an old maid, kiss your sweetheart goodnight.

This was the cheerful information conveyed to girls of America by Dr. Charles E. Baker, eminent psychologist, in an address in which he brought forward a solution for the age-old problem, 'Sweet Sixteen, Can I kiss You Good-Night?"

"There is nothing wrong," declared Dr. Baker, "In a young man giving his girl a kiss before he parts with her at night.

"There is nothing wrong in that—but, girls, don't let them do it."

Continuing the psychologist said: "More girls have been robbed of future husbands as a result of the good night kiss than for any other reason. Girls, do you want me to tell you a secret? Well, it's this. After a man kisses a girl he doesn't want her."

Concerning Baldness.

A majority of men who have amounted to anything have gone bald. To go bald before amounting to anything is the lot of millions. Among those millions are many who feel that the first kingdom of the world would be compensation for loss of hair, even if the perquisites of a king did not include an allowance for a court wigmaker. Even without a crown as a consolation, there is a certain solace in not having to wonder whether your scalplock is standing perpendicularly when the occasion calls for solemnity.—Exchange.

YEAST FILLS OUT HOLLOWS IN SUNKEN CHEEKS

Science finds that people become thin, weak and sickly because their food lacks one vitally necessary element called vitamines.

Yeast contains billions of vitanines and is great for building good solid flesh and muscle. People formerly ate yeast cakes but the best and easiest way to take vitamines into the system is to take Ironize Yeast which concenrated brewer's yeast (very effective) in tablet form. It also contains iron, the great blood builder, making the work of the vitamines doubly effective. Many say that with Ironized Yeast it is easy to gain as much as a pound a day. Quickly rids the skin of pimples, blackheads, etc.

Queen of Morgan County Nomination Blank

Miss .....

Town ..... or Route .....

Morgan County is expected to send its most beautiful young lady to the Birmingham Semi-Centennial Exposition week of Oct. 24 to 29. This queen is to be selected by popular ballot under the auspices of the Albany Chamber of Commerce. She will be one of 67 Queens from Alabama counties who will receive President and Mrs. Harding while on their visit to Alabama. She will be entertained royally, without cost during her stay in Birmingham.

Candidates for Queen of Morgan County must first be nominated, then voted on. Clip this coupon, fill in with name of the young lady you would like to see elected, then mail to the Albany Chamber of Commerce. Names of those nominated will be published in the Daily on Monday, Sept. 26. Then the voting will begin. Send this coupon in today.

12,000 Killed--- 1,500,000 Injured!

CASUALTIES in the United States from ONE CAUSE ALONE—the automobile—during one short year of peace, 1920, are greater than those of the greatest battles of history. And the terrible record has been vastly increased in 1921.

YOU feel pretty sure that YOU are going to escape. Every one of the 1,512,000 Americans killed or injured by automobiles in 1920 held to the same strange personal-immunity theory—until it was necessary to call the ambulance.

YOU CAN'T BUY an insurance policy that will keep you from getting killed, or hurt, or from getting sick, or from dying a natural death. But you can get one, NOW, that will partially indemnify you and your dependents when the time comes to call the ambulance, or the doctor, for YOU.

YOU CAN'T BUY ANYTHING from the RELIANCE, except a courteous reply, unless you are able NOW to stand a medical examination and an unprejudiced inspection report. But if these things are in your favor, you can get with very great advantage to yourself an arrangement that will promptly.

1. Pay you $50 a week for injury, from the day it happens.
2. Pay you $50 a week for sickness, from the day you get sick.
3. Pay you $100.00 a month for life for total and permanent disability, and also pay your life insurance premiums.
4. Pay your family $10,000 cash when you die from any cause.
5. Pay them an additional $15,000, or a total of $25,000, if your death results from accidental injury.

ALL OF THIS IN AN OLD LINE LIFE INSURANCE POLICY

I bin here in Kol'but County
Bout sixty years or 'mo'
An' I could tell you all white folks
Jes' lots you'd lak ter know,
But I won't tell no secrets
Ill ack jes' clean smack dum.
Cause I jes' got to be here
When dat Marse Hinnery come'.

I hears all de menfolks talkin'
When I goes down to de stores,
And all de 'omens gossipin'
Eroun' dier neighbors doors.
Yas, even chilluns talkin' it;
Dey ain' nobobdy mum,
An' it's all de se'fsame subjick,
Bout "When Marse Hinnery come".

Frum all dat I kin gather
Frum de talk what's goin' roun'
He got ter git pumission
Per ter up and come on down
Now I don't see no objick
In trying to keep him frum
So I'm jes daily specting
Fer to see Marse Hinnery come.

He'll come sailing thru' de air
On big wings made O' gold
His hair and beards down to his knees
Lak dem prophet Kings of old
He'll have rings on toes and fingers,
An di'mons—Man I'll Vum
We'll shout ourselves to pieces
When we fin' Marse Hinnery's come.

He'll cure de pore and sickly
An' make young ergin de old
He'll build ten thousand mansions
An' pave dese streets wid gold
He's de riches man in crissendum
He could buy up all de rum
I'm jus bout ter bust wid longing
Fer to see Marse Hinnery come.

You all heard Marse Ed a'talking
At de speaking to 'ther night
As to how dem mens in Was-intun
Seems to think de pro jicks right
But dat town N'yawk and Sh-Cargo
Will all be on de bum
Dey can't hold a light to us Chile
After us Marse Hinnery come.

Hard times 'll all be over,
Milk and honey flowin' free
Money drappin everywhere
Fine autos fer you and me
So I ain't go do air lick o' work
Not turn my hand by gum
I'll set and chaw my backer
Ontil Marse Hinnery come.

SYNOPSIS.

PART ONE.

Proud possessor of a printing press and equipment, the gift of Uncle Joseph to his nephew, Herbert Illingsworth Atwater, Jr., aged thirteen, the fortunate youth, with his chum, Henry Rooter, about the same age, begins the publication of a full-fledged newspaper, the North End Daily Oriole. Herbert's small cousin, Florence Atwater, being barred from any kind of participation in the enterprise, on account of her intense and natural feminine desire to "boss," is frankly annoyed, and not at all backward in saying so. However, a poem she has written is accepted for insertion in the Oriole, on a strictly commercial basis—cash in advance. The poem suffers somewhat from the inexperience of the youthful publishers in the "art preservative." Her not altogether unreasonable demand for republication of the masterpiece, with its beauty unmarred, are scorned, and the break between Miss Atwater and the publishers of the Oriole widens.

The Sunday following the first appearance of the Oriole, Florence's particular chum, Patty Fairchild, pays her a visit. They are joined, despite Miss Atwater's openly expressed disapproval, by Master Herbert Atwater and Henry Rooter. Not at all disconcerted by the coolness of their reception, the visitors and Miss Fairchild indulge in a series of innocent Sunday games. Among them is one called "Truth," the feature of which is a contract to write a question and answer, both to be kept a profound secret. The agreement is duly carried out.

Declining emphatically to participate in any game with her cousin and Henry Rooter, Florence is piqued by Miss Fairchild's open desertion to the enemy, her erstwhile bosom friend apparently enjoying herself immensely in the company of the visitors and leaving with them.

PART TWO.

On her visitors' departure, Florence learns through a conversation between her parents, that her aunt, Julia Atwater, idol of the greater part of the male population of the place, but at present out of town on a visit, has apparently become engaged to a gentleman of the name of Crum, altogether unknown to the Atwater family. Indulging in speculation concerning the fortunate youth, Mr. and Mrs. Atwater concede that for all they know he may be a widower, or divorced, with any number of children, etc. Florence misses none of the remarks.

In her room that evening Florence finds two brief notes used in the afternoon game of "Truth," and unfortunately lost by Miss Fairchild. To that young lady's query as to whether they did not think they had pretty eyes, both Herbert and Henry admitted they did, and had affixed their signatures to the statement. Realizing that neither of the young gentlemen would care to have it known that they had thus acknowledged the possession of "pretty eyes," Florence perceives what a powerful weapon has been placed in her hands, for among the youth of the town is a boy, Wallie Torbin, gifted with a remarkable talent for mimicry and an altogether malignant disposition. The combination has made him dreaded, and Florence realizes that a threat to put Wallie Torbin in possession of the secret concerning their "pretty eyes" would bring Herbert and Henry groveling at her feet and probably lead to her greatly desired participation in their journalistic enterprise.

Acquainting the two unfortunates with her knowledge of their awful secret, they make complete submission and Florence becomes the undisputed master mind of the Oriole.

In the next issue, with which the erstwhile proprietors of the sheet have little to do, editorially, among the "news" items is related the engagement of Miss Julia Atwater to Mr. Crum, the gentleman being referred to as a widower, also divorced, and with a "great many children."

Among the most ardent and hopeless admirers of the beautiful Julia is a youth of the name of Noble Dill, an altogether commonplace and uninteresting individual, notable only among his fellow townsmen for his devoted attachment to the object of his affections. He is, however, Florence's Ideal, and that young lady, desirous of breaking the news of Julia's engagement "gently," herself presents him with a copy of the Oriole containing the announcement.

"That's what I say," Henry agreed gloomily; and then, without any alteration of his tone or of the dejected thoughtfulness of his attitude, he changed the subject in a way that painfully startled his companion. "Have you seen Wallie Torbin today, Herbert?"

"What!"

"Have you seen Wallie Torbin today?"

Herbert swallowed. "Why, what makes—what makes you ask me that, Henry?" he asked.

"Oh, nothin'." Henry still kept his eyes upon his gloomily scuffing toe. "I just wondered, because I didn't happen to see him in school this afternoon when I happened to look in the door of the Eight-A when it was open. I didn't want to know on account of anything particular. I just happened to say that because I didn't have anything else to think about just then, so I just happened to think about him, the way you do when you haven't got anything much on your mind, and might get to thinkin' about you can't tell what. That's all the way it was; I just happened to kind of wonder if he was around anywhere, maybe."

Henry's tone was obviously, even elaborately, sincere; and Herbert was reassured. "Well, I didn't see him," he responded. "Maybe he's sick."

"No, he isn't," his friend said. "Florence said she saw him chasin' his dog down the street about noon."

At this Herbert's uneasiness was uncomfortably renewed. "Florence did? Where'd you see Florence?"

Mr. Rooter swallowed. "A little while ago," he said, and again swallowed. "On the way home from school."

"Look—look here!" Herbert was flurried to the point of panic. "Henry—did Florence—did she go and tell you—did she tell you—?"

"I didn't hardly notice what she was talkin' about," Henry said, doggedly. "She didn't have anything to say that I'd ever care two cents about. She came up behind me and walked along with me a ways, but I got too many things on my mind to hardly pay the least attention to anything she ever talks about. She's a girl what I think about her the less people pay any 'tention to what she says the better off they are."

"That's the way with me, Henry," his partner assured him earnestly. "I never pay any notice to what she says. The way I figure it out about her, Henry, everybody'd be a good deal better off if nobody ever paid the least notice to anything she says. I never even notice what she says, myself."

"I don't either," said Henry. "All I think about is what my father and mother say, because I'm not goin' to have their advice all the rest o' my life, after they're dead. If they want me to be polite, why, I'll do it and that's all there is about it."

"It's the same way with me, Henry. If she comes flappin' around here blattin' and blubbin' how she's goin' to have somep'm to do with our newspaper, why, the only reason I'd ever let her would be because my family say I ought to show more politeness to her than up to now. I wouldn't do it in any other acount, Henry."

"Neither would I. That's just the same way I look at it. If I ever begin to treat her any better, she's got my father and mother to thank, not me. That's the only reason I'd be willing to say we better leave the plank down and let her in, if she comes around here like she's liable to."

"Well," said Herbert, "I'm willing I don't want to get in trouble with the family."

And they mounted the stairs to their editorial, reportorial, and printing rooms; and began to work in a manner not only preoccupied but apprehensive. Now and then they would give each other a furtive glance, and then seem to reflect upon their fathers' and mothers' wishes and the troublous state of the times. Florence did not keep them waiting long, however.

She might have been easier to bear had her manner of arrival been less assured. She romped up the stairs; came skipping across the old floor, swinging her hat by a ribbon, flung open the gate in the sacred railing, and flounced into the principal chair, immodestly placing her feet on the table in front of that chair. Additionally, such was her riotous liveliness, she affected to light and smoke the stub of a lead pencil. "Well, men," she said heartily in a voice assumed to be that of a tall, powerful man—"I don't want to see any loafin' around here, men. I expect to have a pretty good newspaper this week—yes, sir, a pretty good newspaper—and I guess you men got to jump around pretty brisk to do everything I think of, or else maybe I guess I'll have to turn you off and get some new ones that'll be more obedient. I don't want to haf to do that, men."

The blackmailed partners made no reply, on account of an inability that was perfect for the moment.

Florence made it clear to them that henceforth she was sole editor of the North End Daily Oriole. (She said she had decided not to change the name, after all.) She informed them that they were to be her printers, nothing more; she did not care to get all inky and nasty, she said. She would, however, do all the writing for her newspaper, and had with her a new poem. Also, she would furnish all the news and it would be printed just as she wrote it, and printed nicely, too, or else—"look out!"

Thus did this cool hand take possession of an established industry, and in much the same fashion did she continue to manage it. There were unsuppressible protests; there was covert anguish; there was even a strike—but it was a short one. When the printers remained away from their late newspaper building, on Wednesday afternoon, Florence had an interview with Herbert after dinner at his own door. He explained coldly that Henry and he had grown tired of the printing press and had decided to put in all their spare time building a theater in Henry's attic; but Florence

FARM REVIVAL ON AT THE CAPITAL

(Montgomery Bureau Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 20. — Montgomery entered the second week of its agricultural and educational revival Monday with celebrations at the Pike Road consolidated school, the Ramer consolidated school and the Country Club. At each place addresses were delivered by prominent persons, among them being Dr. P. G. Holden, who is known throughout the United States, and R. A. Haynie of Illinois.

This week has been dedicated to agriculture and throughout the week addresses on the various phases of agriculture and rural development will be discussed.

One of the features of the celebration Monday was the Home Products Dinner at the country club. At their dinner nothing was placed on the table which was not grown in Montgomery county. This dinner was arranged by the Rotary, Kiwanis, Exchange and Civitan clubs and the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Much Suffering Caused by Waste Products in the Blood

What Science Knows About the Matter and How It Is Best Treated.

The blood is more important than any of the organs. It is thru the blood that the whole human body is directly or indirectly nourished. The blood gets its nourishment from the intestines. The intestines also contain waste products — undigested foods, acids, gases and refuse, which sometimes get in the blood.

When waste products get in the blood, nature will strive to cast them out. If your resistance is strong enough, nature will probably succeed. But if you are "below par," weak, run-down, and nervous, nature will begin to show signs of distress.

As a result, you will have that feeling of fatigue. You will lack the energy you need for the day's duties and pleasure. Minor ailments will begin to affect you—pimples, blackheads, and boils.

If the waste products are not gotten out of the blood at this point, it is possible a more serious skin eruption or disease will begin to show itself.

It is not infrequent for waste products to settle in the muscles and joints and cause rheumatism.

Listen to nature's warning. Your blood is your fountain source of energy—therefore keep your blood rich and pure.

For over 50 years, thousands and thousands of men and women have relied on S. S. S. to clear their blood of waste products. S. S. S. will improve the quality of your blood by relieving you of the waste products which cause impoverished blood and its allied troubles—skin disorders, rheumatism and a lowered vitality.

AMONG BEADED BLOUSES

Here is a beaded blouse which will compel many an admiring glance wherever it is worn. For the theater, dinner party or any other place where splendor-loving women undertake to look their best, it is sure to triumph. Those two rivals in beautiful fabrics—crepe de chine and georgettes—have joined forces in this blouse. Imagine it in sapphire blue crepe de chine with beads in sapphire blue and steel and falling flounces on the sleeves made of black georgette similarly beaded.

A number of Australia plants are covered with hair.

PROBERS BEGIN AT DAYLIGHT TO WORK IN MINE INQUIRY

(International News Service)

HUNTINGTON, West Va., Sept. 20—While most of Huntington was rubbing the sleep from its eyes Senators Kenyon and Shortridge, continuing their whirlwind inquiry into the industrial warfare in the West Virginia coal fields, boarded a train at dawn today for a rush through Logan county to review the scene of the recent bloody battle at the Boone county line which resulted in federal action and presence of federal troops in the troubled area. The senate committee, at the suggestion of the state police in Mingo county, planned to examine Sheriff Chaffin of Logan county who was in command of about 2,000 deputies who defended the Logan-Boone line until the coming of United States troops, caused the retreat of the invading union miners. Officers and members of the state constabulary now stationed at Blair mountain, the dividing line between the two counties, also will be given an opportunity to describe the recent outbreak to the committee.

BATTLE FIRE-BUGS

(International News Service)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Citizens fought a pistol battle with three negro fire-bugs this morning when they were seen applying torches to the property of the Southern Engine and Boiler Works in North Memphis. The negroes escaped.

UNMARRED BY HAND OF TIME

Human Bodies and Relics of Roman Gaul Found in France, Almost Perfectly Preserved.

Camville Jullien, a member of the French academy, recently submitted to that body a sensational report on the archeological findings in the neighborhood of Clermont-Ferrand (capital of the department of Puy-de-Dome, 212 miles southeast of Paris), which, as it were, bring to light the whole daily life of a small market-town of the time of Roman Gaul. In the Canton Martre-de-Vegre some people while working with a pick on a property struck on something hard, which seemed to be the lid of a Gallo-Roman sarcophagus. Upon lifting the lid they found a wondrously beautiful woman whose flesh was perfectly preserved as on the day of her death, eighteen centuries ago. Also the tresses of her black hair seemed as if unaffected.

The finders, however, had only a brief enjoyment of this astounding sight, as under the action of the solar heat the woman's body in a few moments crumbled into dust, so that all that remained was a skeleton wrapped in a dress. Further searchings and excavations yielded five more equally well-preserved tombs, in which objects of the greatest archeological interest were found, such as coins, vases, pottery, baskets, toilet articles, women's garments, shoes, and even fruits, barely shriveled up, and a box-tree twig still perfectly green.

The savants who examined these Gallo-Roman findings are convinced that the miracle of the preservation of the corpses through eighteen centuries was due to the neighboring springs, from which escaped carbonic acid gas, which, being heavier than the air, displaced the air from the coffins, and preserved the bodies, perfectly fresh, for 1,800 years. The scientific experts declared that never before have been found bodies and objects from that period in such perfect preservation.

Safeguarding the Miner.

To protect the miner against his ancient enemy, inflammable gas a mining engineer has improved the standard type of miner's lamp. He has added a device which causes the lamp to emit a loud singing note as soon as the atmosphere becomes charged with inflammable gas.

RECRUITING FOR CIVIL WAR

Woodcuts of the Period Show How It Was Done in the Dark Days of 1863.

An old woodcut in a Madison avenue picture-store window shows how recruiting was done in City Hall park in Civil war days—1863, to be exact. Over a shanty in the park is a large painted sign with red headlines, which reads, according to the New York Herald:

"Thirty Thousand Volunteers Wanted: County bonus, cash down, $300; state bounty, $75; United States bounty, for new recruits, $302. Total to new recruits, $677; United States bounty to veteran soldiers, $100; total to veteran soldiers, $777."

Less this handy sum fail to attract the desired number of patriots, a placard at the left announces that $15 "hand money" will be paid "to any party who brings a recruit," and among the throng of citizens and soldiers about the door one sees at least two recruits, one of them apparently in the last stage of fatigue or intoxication, being hailed to the recruiting booth by their fellows.

Salt Makers of Bali.

"May the sea never lose its salt!" prays the Balinese, who likes his rice salted. (Bali is an island near Java, under Dutch protection.) On a well-leveled, sandy plot the salt makers work in the sun, scattering sea water from light bowls, skillfully fashioned from palm leaves. When the sun has absorbed the moisture, the laborers carefully skim off the surface sand, carry it to the thatched huts at the edge of the plot and put it into vats filled with water. After the sand has settled in the bottom of the vats, they draw off the brine into shallow vessels of coconut wood, which they set out in the sun. In a few hours nothing remains but pure salt. The salt gained through this primitive process is deemed very precious by the Balinese, who will sell his treasures for salt when money will not tempt him. But then money is of little value on Bali. High finance is unknown among the simple, agricultural people, and trade is still largely a matter of barter—Asia Magazine.

Restoring Black Walnut.

In an effort to restore the black walnut 150 bushels of seed have recently been planted at Mont Alto, Pa., and next spring it is expected that fully 100,000 seedlings will be available for replanting in groves in various parts of the state.

It is not difficult to start a walnut plantation, says the American Forestry Magazine, and it cites the case of an Indian farmer in the Far West who, a few years ago, after an exceptionally heavy seed year, drove his wagon down to the Wabash bottoms and shoveled it full of nuts and litter. Then going up to his field he spread the nuts from the tail of the cart on the frozen ground in the same way manure is spread. In the spring when the frost was coming out of the ground and the soil was soft he had his boys take wooden mallets and go out and pound into the soil every nut they could see. It is reported that he has an excellent young grove at the present time.

Now is the time to pay close attention and see that your bakings are pure, wholesome and nutritious.

Good flour is all flour with all the nutritive value of wheat. Mix it with good baking powder and you have a nutritious, wholesome, palatable baking. No ready mixed substitute will take its place.

For wholesome, nourishing food you must use straight flour and a pure baking powder—

There never was, is not, and never will be anything that will take the place of good straight baking powder and plain flour.

If you are using self rising flour or any other kind of a substitute for good baking powder or plain flour you had better stop, because you are not practicing real economy, not saving a cent, and worst of all you take a chance of losing the full nutritious health-building value of a good, plain flour.

24½ Million Dollars Invested by Employes of Swift & Company

More than 21,000 employes of Swift & Company own or are paying for shares in the business. These men and women have attested their faith in the integrity and good will of the company by investing their savings in the business.

Their holdings represent a total of nearly 250,000 shares, the par value ($100 a share) of which is more than $24,500,000.

These 21,000 represent more than one-third of our average number of employes!

One man out of every three, in plant, office, and branch house, from the handworker on the floor to the brain worker at the desk; working with us as well as for us, devoting himself to his own business while devoting himself to ours; promoting his own interests in every motion or moment saved, in every product improved or maintained at perfection, in every service rendered through prompt, thorough, effective distribution of products.

This interested, eager group of fellow partners working with us for the good of Swift & Company and the public which we serve, constitutes one-half of the ownership of Swift & Company in point of numbers, and nearly one-sixth in point of shares outstanding.

It represents practical and successful progress toward the end at which enlightened modern industry is aiming for the solution of industrial problems—toward cooperation, mutuality, brotherhood in business, for the good of all.

Envying your friend's sound sleep won't get you the sleep you need. Watch what he drinks and ask him the reason why

You can't help noticing the man who comes down to the office in the morning with ruddy cheeks and clear sparkling eyes—full of energy, and eager for the tasks of the day.

He is physically "fit"—and can do twice the amount of work the average person can do, without becoming fatigued.

If you go out to lunch with this man you'll notice that probably he avoids coffee, though he may drink Postum—the well-known and delicious beverage, coffee-like in flavor.

This is the secret of his superb health. He isn't putting the drugs from coffee or tea into his system three times every day. As a consequence he sleeps like a healthy baby all night. His sleep refreshes and rests him. He has perfect control of his nerves.

Do not delay another day in starting back on the road to robust health. The rich, coffee-like flavor of Postum will surprise and please you.

Order Postum from your Grocer today. Drink this hot, refreshing beverage in place of tea or coffee for ten days and see what a wonderful difference it will make in the way you feel.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

DIPHTHERIA

Diphtheria is communicable disease caused by a specific germ, the diphtheria bacillus. Any sore throat in a child under twelve years of age should be suspected of being diphtheria and treated as such until it has been proven otherwise.

Diphtheria bacilli attack the mucous membrances of the body, usually those about the mouth, throat and nose. The bacilli are not found in other parts of the body in great numbers. They generate a toxin which poisons the tissues of the body causing the constitutional symptoms which are so often very severe.

By no means does every case of diphtheria becomes severe. In fact some children never feel ill enough to remain in bed. However, even the very mildest cases must be treated with caution on account of the serious complications that are liable to arise. Furthermore, a person may contract the disease from exposure to a mild case and have a most severe illness. Indeed, it is not at all impossible for death to follow in a person who contracts diphtheria from a person who has had a very mild attack.

The advent of the diphtheria antitoxin has been a boon to civilization and when this antitoxin is administered to a person having diphtheria within 48 hours after the onset of the disease the life of the patient is almost invariably saved.

Proper diagnosis and early treatment are the two main features for the cure of diphtheria.

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanne Price

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Across the Hudson, in New Jersey a clarion campaign is being waged by one politician with the paramount issue that his father invented ice cream soda. He has that vital information printed on his campaign cards. So New York has risen to declare its own glory in the matter of all such concoctions. "It may be quite true that our neighbor deserves the office of commissioner because of the achievement of his father in giving us ice cream sodas; but right here on Manhattan Island was ice cream itself invented." One hundred and five years ago last month, a negro pastry chef employed here out forth this benefaction to the human race, and for many years so well guarded the secret of making it that he had a monopoly.

* * *

New York is going to have a regular school for detectives under the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice. The training will be for the same teaching of the men the law as well as methods of sleuthing. William J. Burns, new chief of the bureau, declares that before many years as a result, we will have a detective service that will rival Scotland Yard.

* * *

Realism has reached the motion picture world with the same emphasis shown this past season in literature and on the speaking stage. "The Old Nest," which has been one of the tremendous hits of the year, is evidence that the screen can reach dramatic heights through laying bare the lives of real people, just an ordinary American family, as successfully as can the modern novel. It is Life one sees in "The Old Nests," with the emotions, the tragedies, the occasional shining humor, the human experiences of Life. That is why it packed its theater here regularly. Rupert Hughes did the photoplay version from his own novel, a plan which probably is responsible for the particulary consistent development of story and characters. Mary Alden seems to have broken into stardom through the role of the mother. Others in the cast of 25 people are Helene Chadwick, Molly Malone, Louise Lovely, Wight Crittenden, Cullen Landis, and others well known on the screens.

* * *

After some hectic weeks of forecasting and debating the tense matter of the length of our skirts for the coming season, we seem at last to have a working basis. We have been shivering with dread at the thought of instep touching draperies and almost decided not to buy anything at all, just for an excuse to cling to present fashions. At last, however, the fog has cleared and the smartest New York costumeurs agree that ten inches from the floor will be a safe, stable, and correct length for suits and simple frocks this winter in spite of all wild rumors. So the city has settled down again to the consideration of disarmament and the approaching elections.

Seneca Springs

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 17, 1921
Mr. Seneca B. Burr,
Decatur, Ala.
Dear Sir:—

I am enclosing herewith report of results of analysis of the sample of water recently forwarded by you, and, as previously stated, I regret very much that we could not send you an earlier report, owing to the very large amount of important State work which we have had on hand.

The results of our anaysis show that the water is slightly hard, owing to the presence of compounds of lime and magnesia, though the hardness is chiefly of a temporary character. Out of the total amount of mineral matter present, compounds of magnesia constitute quite a fair proportion, this particular constituent being of possible therapeutic value when present in sufficient quantity. The proportion of organic matter present is quite small.

If I can furnish any further information on this subject, I shall be glad to do so.

Very truly yours,
B. B. ROSS.
State Chemist.

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 16, 1921
Report of results of Analysis of Sample of Water forwarded by Seneca B. Burr, Decatur, Ala.

The sample on analysis was found to contain:

Total Solid Matter—8.66 grains per gallon.
Volatile and Organic Matter—0.96 grains per gallon.

The following constituents were found to be present:

Iron	traces
Alumina	traces
Lime	relatively large amount
Magnesia	fair amount
Sodium	fair amount
Potassium	small amount
Chlorine (combined)	small amt.
Carbonic Acid (combined)	relatively large amount.
Sulphuric Acid (combined)	small amount.

B. B. ROSS, State Chemist.

I consider the above report as "Excellent." The proportion of organic matter being exceedingly small.

DECLARES FATTY ALONE CAN TELL WHAT HAPPENED

(Copyright by Chicago American)

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Lowell Sherman, sought by authorities at San Francisco, as a witness in the case of Fatty Arbuckle, charged with the murder of Virginia Rappe, arrived in Chicago today. He entered a denial of reports that he was a fugitive from justice and that a third man was in the room where Miss Rappe met death.

"No one but Arbuckle knows what happened to Virginia Rappe in the inner room," Sherman said. "I am not a fugitive from justice . I was allowed to come east after giving depositions. Another point I want to make clear is that Arbuckle, who is my friend, never carried Miss Rappe into his boudoir while he was clothed only in pajamas. That's tommy-rot.' Sherman was a member of the party in Arbuckle's room where Miss Rappe received the injuries that caused her death.

COTTON MARKET CONTINUES STRONG

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The buying movement in cotton, which gained much headway was continued actively at the opening of the market today and first prices rose from 35 to 52 points. Liverpool, commission houses and Texas spot interests were among the early purchasers.

The South and Japanese interests with local professionals furnished the selling. The list continued its course upward after the opening and at the end of the first 15 minutes was about 53 points higher on active positions

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20. — An advance to 20 cents a pound was reached in the cotton market here today. The advance ranged from 68 to 79 joints with October contracts touching a high point of 20 cents. The sharp gains of the 2 days tempted some realizing and some selling from the long side caused values to ease off a few points, leaving the net advance 44 to 60 points.

LEWIS OUTLINES MINERS' POSITION

(International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 20. — "The fight in Mingo county must be won". In these words John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, today summed up a lengthy discussion of the recent bloody conflict in the West Virginia coal fields in his report to the convention of the miners' organization here.

"There can be no compromise of the principles involved in the Mingo county contest. The souls of our dead members who have died in this conflict will protest against any other course and on this occasion let us resolve to carry on. We sincerely hope the work of the senatorial committee will be instrumental in laying bare the horrors of that field and in paving the way for the recognition of the rights of the mine workers who desire to become members of the United Mine Workers Union. Industrial peace will never come to this tented area until the miners of that field are accorded the same privileges as exist in the organized sections of America and which are their lawful heritages," declared the union chief.

Lewis was equally emphatic in his assertion that the wages of the miners shall not be reduced.

CALLED MEETING

There will be a called meeting of Rising Sun Lodge tonight for work at 7 o'clock in the "A. E". degree. All Masons cordially invited.

Back Bad Today

Backache is usually kidney-ache makes you dull, nervous and tired. Doan's Kidney Pills for weak kidneys—the remedy recommended by friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbors.

R. W. Dodson, 1114 Third Ave., Albany, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on several occasions and they have always brought relief. When I first began using Doan's, I was in pretty bad shape with pain in my back. I met with an accident on a street car several years ago and I blame this for bothering on the trouble. Whenever I would stoop over, I couldn't straighten without taking hold of something. I often got dizzy and black spots floated before my eyes. My kidneys acted irregularly and I was in pretty bad shape. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Dillehay Bros.' Drug Store, and they soon relieved me of these troubles. I have frequently recommended Doan's since."
